"I just talked to him," said Tom Sr. "It cost me over $7 but it was the best money I ever spent. He got shot up alright but not badly and he's coming home soon."

Marquette Convict Wounded In Capture

With a bullet wound in his right thigh, John Jacker, 26, was back in custody at the state prison in Marquette last night after a brief escape from the prison work camp at Loma farms, about 18 miles from Marquette. Jacker, an Indian, was a trusty at the farm, and walked away Wednesday night. State police, prison officers and conservation officers blocked roads, and Jacker was sighted at 11:40 a. m. Thursday in the Yellow Dog river district, not far from the farm.

State police called to him to give himself up and when he ignored the commands, an officer fired, the bullet hitting Jacker, who was then captured. At the prison hospital it was said that the inmate's wound was not serious. He is a native of Baraga county and was sentenced June 12, 1944, to two to five years for burglary.

Roosevelt Gets 4th Nomination

he laid—strategy must be carried out. They do not concern merely a party or a group. They will affect the daily lives of Americans for generations to come."

As thousands of party partisans waited in Chicago's huge convention hall for Mr. Roosevelt formally to accept renomination by radio, Senator Harry Truman of Missouri began a stretch drive to catch hard-running Henry A. Wallace in a hotly contested race for second spot on the 1944 ticket.

Truman Gains Strength
Wallace was out in front with 316½ votes claimed and pledged toward the 589 needed to renominate him.

But the 60-year-old Missouri chairman of the senate was investigating committee was picking up strength from the south. Louisiana decided to add its 22 votes to the 32 already pledged him by Missouri. Arkansas promptly tossed all its 20 votes on the heap for Truman.

His followers hailed these actions as a trend in Dixie, since other southern states reputedly were going to string along with the senator.

Furthermore, politically powerful Edward Kelly, Chicago's mayor, declared:

"It's looking better for Truman all the time."

In the Wallace camp, which packed Chicago Stadium tonight with a profusion of posters boosting their man, Senator Joseph Guffey of Pennsylvania, countered:

"I think Wallace is in, but not on the first ballot."

First Ballot Friday

Convention officials said that the first ballot would take place tomorrow—not tonight.

The Byrd support in the presidential poll also came largely from the south, where dissatisfied delegates had objected to some of the convent's actions.

The pro-Roosevelt delegation from Texas, given half the state's 48 votes when seated, voted all 24 for Roosevelt on the roll call of states. The anti-fourth term led group cast 12 for Roosevelt and 12 for Byrd.

Still undecided, as the convention settled back to wait for a radio acceptance speech from Mr. Roosevelt later in the evening, was the choice of a running mate to enter the arena with him against the Dewey-Bricker Republican ticket.

Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Senator Harry Truman of Missouri, rode by turns an ebb and flow of a swirling, unpredictable vice-presidential tide.

Still in the running, too, was Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky, whose thundering voice earlier had placed Mr. Roosevelt's own name in nomination in a moment of unprecedented convention drama.

Bedlam in Stadium

For the president to stand upon, the convention adopted a platform pledging that the United States should join an association of sovereign nations empowered to use armed force, if need be, to preserve the future security of the world.

Thousands and thousands of Democrats packed Chicago's tremendous stadium to hear Barkley's nominating address. At the end there was bedlam.

The tousled head of Wallace was seen to move down the aisles jammed with excited humanity, and he ascended the platform to make one of the seconding orations. It was, in a sense, a surprise move, for platform officials did not know until late in the day that he was to be among the seconders.

His supporters figured it would certainly do him no harm in his own fight for renomination.

With a lock of hair ever his eye like a tassel of Iowa corn, Wallace told the delegates that President Roosevelt is the "greatest living American," and he adjured the convention to stick by "the liberal policies for which Roosevelt has always stood."

Taking up the anti-poll tax issue, anathema to many Dixie Democrats in the audience, he declared "there must be no inferior race. The poll tax must go."

A scattering of boos arose when Mrs. Fred T. Nooney of Jacksonville, Fla., arose to nominate for president, Virginia's Senator Harry Byrd, hero of many Southerners revived under the Roosevelt regime.

But Chairman Samuel Jackson, Indiana senator, quickly stilled the audience with a sharp rebuke: "There isn't a Democrat alive entitled to anybody's boos."

PLOT BLAMED ON CLIQUE OF MILITARY MEN

miserable clique of former generals who were dismissed because of their cowardly and bad leadership. "The fuhrer was saved by providence. These criminals try now as a new Reich government, or as usurpers and by wrong orders, to confuse the troops."

Goering was followed in turn by Admiral Karl Doenitz, chief of the waning German navy, who intimated that the revolt may have spread to his arm of the service, declaring the navy would only "accept orders from its own commanders," and that "to avoid being misled by false instructions, every traitor will be ruthlessly destroyed."

Doenitz, too, blamed the plot on a "clique of mad generals."

The Goering reference to a "new Reich government" by the dissidents disclosed the breadth and depth of the revolt which broke into the open just two weeks after it was announced that Marshal Karl Gerd Rudolf Von Rundstedt, stiff and stern old militarist, had been dismissed as commander-in-chief of the German anti-invasion forces.

The accusing fingers of Hitler and his henchmen may well be pointing directly at Rundstedt, who has never been pro-Nazi and who has disagreed violently with Hitler's "intuitive" direction of the German forces.

Goering Absent

The German story left the implication that the attempt was made during a meeting of Hitler and his highest and most trusted military aides.

"It is quite likely that only a person or persons in very high position would know Hitler's whereabouts and be able to gain access with sufficient explosives to injure so many men."

The No. 2 Nazi, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, was absent at the critical moment—just as he was in the Munich beer-hall bombing of Nov. 8, 1939, in which Hitler barely escaped, and as he was during the historic Reichstag fire of 1933.

Just as on those occasions, Goering hurried to the scene immediately afterward.

The German broadcasts said not only that Goering called on the fuhrer, but that Hitler immediately after the explosion held a long scheduled conversation with Benito Mussolini, head of the German-puppet Fascist regime of northern Italy.

It was the second time that persons in Hitler's entourage had been injured at about the time of a meeting with Mussolini. After their last conference, the Germans announced that a General Hube and Walter Hewel, liaison man between Hitler and his foreign office, had been killed as the result of accidents.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I don't blame the fellows overseas for gettin' all het up over it, Judge. For the likes of me I can't see what's all the hurry about holdin' these local prohibition elections while they're away."

"I agree with you, Steve. Time after time...in their letters, in articles, in polls taken to get the views of our fighting men...they have indicated in unmistakable terms that they don't want any action taken on prohibition, either local or national, until they get back."

"Too bad there isn't a law or somethin' to be sure their wishes are carried out, Judge."

"There is in one state I know of, Steve. Just recently it passed a law prohibiting the calling of any prohibition election until a year after the peace is declared."

"That really makes sense to me, Judge."

PLAN PARKWAY ON BAY SHORE

90-Foot Divided Lane
Roadway Planned For
Lake Shore Drive

The Escanaba city council in meeting last night formally adopted plans for a 90-foot wide divided lane parkway for about one-half mile of Lake Shore Drive from the foot of 14th street near the athletic field to Highway M-35.

While the parkway development is part of the overall plan for the South Park area of the city along the shore, formal adoption of the plan permits owners of abutting properties to make their plans accordingly.

The parkway plans include sidewalks, side tree strips, and divided lane pavements 18 feet wide, with the 10-foot center division planted to trees. The city owns a 100-foot roadway through the section and the plan will not require the purchase of any additional right of way by the city. No construction is planned, of course, until after the war.

Other post-war plans of the city were evidenced in actions designed to bring construction of a grade crossing separation at the C&NW railroad and US-241 and M-35 near the Birds Eye Veneer company plant; and the authorization to have the city manager purchase $10,000 in F and G series war bonds for a city post-war building fund.

The grade separation project would be financed entirely by federal funds as a post-war project. In a resolution adopted by the council last night the state highway department was asked to put the project high on its priority list because of the great volume of traffic.

The city council also approved a request of the Escanaba Trades & Labor Council for a $75 contribution to aid in financing the annual Labor Day celebration.

The Roving Reporter

Everything is of stone. Even the barns and cowsheds are stone—and in exactly the same design and usually the same size as the houses. They are grouped closely together around a square, so that a farmer's home makes a compact little settlement of buildings that resembles a country estate at a distance.

Normandy is dairy country. Right now the people have more butter on their hands than they know what to do with. It is a stupid soldier indeed who can't get himself all the butter he wants. But even though it is a glut on the market, the French still ask 60 cents a pound for it.

When the Germans were here they bought all the Norman butter, and at fancy prices too. German soldiers would ship it home to their families.

And although their new order is strict and full of promises of an ordered world, the Germans themselves created and fostered the Paris Black Market, according to the local people. Much of the butter bought in Normandy by German officers went to Paris for resale at unheard-of prices.

To be honest about it, we can't sense that Normandy suffered too much under the German occupation. That is no doubt less because of German beneficence than because of the nature of the country. For in any thrifty country the farm people always come out best.

Normandy is rich agriculturally. The people can sustain themselves. It is in the cities that occupation hurts worst. I suspect that when we get to Paris we will hear an entirely different story from the people.

Normandy is certainly a land of children. It seems to me there are more children here even than in Italy. And I'll have to break down and admit one thing—they are the most beautiful children I have ever seen.

It is an exception when you see a child who isn't exceptionally good-looking. Apparently they grow out of this, however, for on the whole the Norman adults look like people anywhere—both good and bad.

One thing about the Normans is in contrast with the temperance we have known so long in the Mediterranean. The people here are hard workers. Some of the American camps and city offices hire teen-age French boys for kitchen and office work, and I've noticed that they go at their work eagerly and like the wind.

The story of the French underground, when the day comes for it to be written, will be one of the most fascinating things in all history.

On the Cherbourg peninsula the underground was made up of cells, five people to a cell. Those five knew each other, but none of them knew any other members of the underground anywhere.

It was fun to see the Frenchmen on the day the underground began coming out into the open. They identified themselves by special arm bands that they had kept in hiding. One underground man would look at a neighbor wearing an arm band and exclaim in amazement:

"What! You too?"

In one village we asked some people who were not in the movement if they had ever known who the underground members in their town were. They said they could

Friend Tells Of Death Of Escanaba War Hero

Walter Ottensman, GM 2/c of the United States Navy, killed in action at Guadalcanal December 4, 1943, lives on in the memory of his shipmates "as a fine example for all his associates," a friend of the Escanaba war hero writes Mrs. Ottensman.

Mrs. Ottensman recently received the Purple Heart medal which was posthumously awarded to her husband.

The letter received by Mrs. Ottensman is from Leonard Martin of the U. S. Navy, a friend and "tent mate of her husband on Guadalcanal before he was killed by Jap fire. The letter, addressed from somewhere in the South Pacific area, follows:

Dear Hazel:

Walter spoke of you too often and was too close a friend for me to be formal enough to address you in any other way.

I am a coward. Yes, although the boys call me "Martin the Slave Driver" and "Simon Legree" there was one thing I started to do several times but always refused to finish. I could never muster enough courage to tell you about that day.

But first, some history. Walter and I were tent mates and friends from the time we left the States until forever. Yes, forever, because some part of Walter will always in spirit be with those who worked with him and knew him well.

His absolute thoroughness, efficiency, and dependability set a fine example for all of his associates and are qualities which I strive to emulate as I carry on the work which is assigned to me.

Surely, we all influence the lives, to a greater or a lesser extent, of some of the people with whom we come in contact.

Being unmarried, I have no way of fully comprehending your loss, but I can share your grief. Yes, in a physical sense he is gone, but in a spiritual sense he will always live on in those who well knew him and loved him. You will be proud, and justly so, that the influence he left with us, his shipmates, is the constant reminder that it is right and desirable to be devoted to family, country and God; to be always dependable; and to be thorough in the performance of all tasks, however small.

The cemetery where Walter lies is a beautiful spot on a beautiful island. We all marveled at the magic spell which the moon cast over us there where we frolicked in the breakers and dove from a boat pulled up onto the beach in the lagoon.

When it rained we would catch enough water in our buckets to take care of our household needs for some time to come. One day pretty well guess, just from the character of the people, but never actually knew for sure.

"MEN FROM MARS" HAVE FIRST CALL FOR TELEPHONES

This weird-looking individual is a "talker" aboard a U. S. warship. By means of a telephone-equipped mask, he can perform his communications duties, even during a gas attack.

He is using one of countless special kinds of telephone equipment which must be manufactured in ever greater quantities.

Filling the orders of our armed forces—345,000 telephones, 782,000 radio headsets, 1,270,000 microphones in 1943 alone—takes just about all the factory capacity, materials and manpower available to telephone manufacturers. That's why there is a large and growing waiting list for telephone service at home.

Orders are filled promptly for telephones essential to the war or necessary to public health, welfare or security. Other orders can be filled only as present users give up service. A uniform and fair procedure, approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission, applies to the handling of all orders.

It is not easy for a company founded on a policy of ever improving service to be forced to inconvenience any one. We will be glad when conditions again will permit us to give service when and where it is wanted.

Jap Doom is Certain

THE resignation of Japan's entire war cabinet, headed by General Hideki Tojo, can only mean that at least Japan's leaders are coming to an appreciation of the futility of their war against this nation. Gone is at least some of the arrogance of Japan's war leaders before the power of America's military might could be applied and the junking of that nation's entire war cabinet must be accepted as the turning point that will lead to complete disintegration.

Successive changes in the control of Japan's navy, as the result of staggering losses at sea in recent months, indicated the loss of confidence in Jap sea power and these naval changes, now followed by the fall of Tojo's entire war cabinet, illuminates the depths to which Jap morale has fallen, among her military leaders. Together these facts may indicate that the way is being paved for peace offers that may not be many months in the future—but doomed in advance for stern rejection.

While Jap gun bearers may continue to fight just as fanatically as in the past, against the land and sea power of America, the hand writing is on the wall and the eventual annihilation of the race is as certain as doomsday. Jap military leaders are smart enough to read that writing, but the thousands of foot soldiers, abandoned to certain death, either by violence or starvation, may not yet appreciate their predicament. As American power pushes steadily toward the Philippines and the Jap homeland more thousands of a once insanely arrogant military force will be wiped out.

It is going to take the lives of too many American boys to accomplish this necessary end, but this nation is willing to pay the price in order that America may take full revenge for Japan's dastardly attack on Pearl Harbor and for the lives of American boys, bravely lost in succeeding actions.

Diversified Industry

ESCANABA'S long cherished hopes of a diversified industry are gradually being realized. This is apparent to those who have taken the time and trouble to visit the new industrial plants that have been brought here during the past year through the joint efforts of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce and the Escanaba city council.

Those who have observed what happened to Detroit, Iron Mountain and other so-called "one-industry" communities during the last depression can appreciate the value of Escanaba's policy of going after a number of small, diversified industries.

As a result of the industrial expansion program, Escanaba now has a picture frame factory employing about fifty persons with bright prospects that it will increase its crew to about one hundred when its mirror department before the end of the year; a garment factory, now employing about forty-five female workers but willing to expand the force to 200 whenever trained labor is available; and a furniture factory, which will employ 25 to 30 persons at the start and hopes to double the number after the war. A few other small industries are in prospect if industrial buildings can be made available to them.

These new industries offer a diversity of technical and manual operations. Not all persons are interested in the same kind of work, and so Escanaba's industrial program promises to meet the different human desires and aptitudes. In this program the new vocational school should play an important role in training young and old for work in our home industries. It will take time to iron out the kinks in the community's industrial expansion and vocational training programs. The situation calls for patience, vision and co-operation on the part of all citizens who sincerely want to do their part to put Escanaba ahead.

Welles Writes a Book

SUMNER WELLES, former undersecretary of state, outlines in his new book, "The Time for Decision" a plan for making Germany an innocuous member of the family of nations after this war is over.

The former diplomat would partition Hitler's Reich into three separate states—Bavaria, Baden and the Rhineland—in a southern state, Hanover, Westphalia and part of Saxony in a western state, Pomerania, Brandenburg, Silesia and the rest of Saxony in an eastern state.

It is doubtful whether the mere changing of the geographical lines of Germany would disunite the German people, when one recalls how Hitler's agents were able to organize fifth column Nazi movements in Austria, Holland and other European countries.

While Welles no longer holds any official position in the American government, it can be expected that Propaganda Minister Goebbels will use his plan for the dismemberment of Germany to his own propaganda purposes. It offers the Nazi propagandists a good opportunity to din into the German people's ears the warnings of what will happen to their fatherland if the Allies are victorious in this war. It could be helpful in making the Nazi soldiers fight harder and the civilians work harder on the production line.

Eric Johnston's Views

LOCAL spirit and local pride must be depended upon to start construction projects and help pave the way for the greater after-victory job of demobilization and reconversion.

This is the view of none other than Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, writing in The Constructor, official publication of the Associated General Contractors of America.

Johnston believes the states and municipalities are in a better position than in many years to resume the practice of financing their own public works, rather than depending upon the federal government. He points out that debts have been reduced, their current tax collections are at peak levels, and their relief responsibilities at a minimum.

The Chamber of Commerce head advocates that all construction work be planned as far in advance as practicable. He contends this is particularly urgent in getting ready for a rapid and orderly shift from a wartime to a peacetime economy.

Johnston's views are in line with those of the Escanaba city manager administration, which already has made plans for the construction program to be undertaken after the war is over. The idea of "planning" has been ridiculed in some business quarters because of its association in the past with government brain trusters and theorists. But here is the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce actually coming out publicly in favor of state and local community planning. The truth of the matter, of course, is that planning has been done in varied degrees from time immemorial.

Brazil Also Fights

BRAZIL has given a practical demonstration of Pan-American solidarity and adherence to the democratic cause by sending an expeditionary force to Italy to fight the Axis. The Brazilian troops landed at Naples last weekend.

While Brazil has not achieved the full meaning of the democratic form of government at home, there has been much progress made in that direction in recent years. The fact that she is willing to send her men to Europe to fight alongside the troops of the other Allied nations indicates that she recognizes the threat that Nazism and Fascism offers to the peace of the world.

Out of the common sacrifices the Brazilians and other peoples are making should come a better understanding of each other and a greater willingness to work together for their mutual welfare in the future.

WAR AND POSTWAR PLANS

(Milwaukee Journal)

The committee for economic development of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce tells industries in Milwaukee tells industries in Milwaukee and elsewhere in the state to plan carefully and speedily, right now, for quick conversion to peacetime production and activity when the time comes.

Of course the time hasn't come yet for most industries, certainly not for individual war workers. They are needed on their jobs, right where they are, if they're producing war materials or goods needed by the troops.

But postwar planning, if sensibly and realistically approached, is a vital thing, as the committee implies.

Upon how well it is done may depend the "lag" of conversion—that period when plants must change from wartime to peacetime production by setting up new machines or adjusting old ones, arranging for distribution, finding new markets, and thus keeping employment up to the highest possible level.

So the committee tells industrial and commercial enterprises to assign at least one man to devising postwar activities, if the enterprises are comparatively small; and to name a strong committee if they, and their problems, are large.

Meanwhile it is obvious that individuals should "plan" too. First, they should plan to stay on war jobs. But in time—and it may be a long time yet—the very young should plan to go back to school; some women should plan to go back to their homes; some "oldsters" should plan once more quietly to take care of their lawns and gardens, which also play their part in normal American life.

After this war America, including of course Milwaukee and Wisconsin, wants "full employment" insofar as possible. That means fair earnings, healthy demands upon industries and service enterprises, consequent prosperity.

At the moment the war task must be uppermost in all minds. But wisely and carefully to plan for a readjustment to the postwar task is the part of wisdom.

The Round Table

BY RAYMOND MOLEY

Chicago—The keynote address by Governor Kerr made it abundantly clear that the "tired old men" argument is giving the Democrats a good deal of concern. But there is plenty of evidence that there is a select number of men around this convention who are not at all tired. And some of them are not very old.

Moley

They are the bosses, mostly from cities, some from industrial states. They are perennials. "Age does not stale, nor custom wither" their infinite resourcefulness and foresight. They were here before the New Deal and they will be here long after that novel adventure is only a memory. Like virile weeds they move in as the garden of ideology planted and watched by Mr. Roosevelt shows signs of the failing interest and vigor by the gardener. As the President loses his watchfulness these bosses gain in boldness and influence. At the moment they are very, very much concerned about the Vice Presidency. They grow more concerned with every passing term.

—C. L. O. WITH BOSSES—

Cooperating with these bosses on most matters is a relatively new form of bossism, the C. L. O. and its Political Action Committee. But the two groups of bosses, labor and the city machines, are not in agreement on the Vice Presidency. Messrs. Hillman and Murray want Wallace, the city bosses want Senator Truman. At least that is the line up as this is written. Things may happen over night after Mayor Kelly's big party.

The evolution of Senator Truman as a contender for the succession came partly as the result of a series of eliminations, partly as the result of the bosses' recognition of the Senator's authentic machine origins. For he is a product of the Kansas City sphere of influence. The bosses assume that he will, if he succeeds to the Presidency, be able to understand their language and to give a decent hearing to their many needs.

Mr. Wallace, on the other hand, has made it clear that his heart is given to the submerged and needy, including the C. L. O. Over and over, he has eloquently made clear that he sees in Messrs. Hillman and Murray the authentic custodians of pure democracy. They want Wallace, and they want him badly. But they are practical men, and something may be worked out if it becomes apparent that their candidate cannot make the grade. The practical bent of Mr. Hillman was shown in his willingness to talk things over with Senator Truman, no doubt to probe the Senator's love for the objectives of the C. L. O. What he learned is not known.

—THEY'RE FOR HIM NOW—

The tone and mood of the President's two letters has given immense impetus to this drive to restore the Democratic Party to those who controlled at least the Northern part of it before 1932. Those letters, the one to Mr. Hannagan indicating his willingness to run, the other to Senator Jackson expressing what might be called a Platonic interest in Mr. Wallace, were not in the old Roosevelt manner. They were the mild expressions of a man who no longer has the will to call all the shots. Maybe he is pre-occupied, and maybe he is tired, but his mood has given the bosses the sign they have been looking for all these years.

There are those who were saying as the convention opened that Mr. Wallace would have four hundred votes on the first ballot. If that proves to be true he will likely make the grade. But most people put his strength at a much lower figure. There are likewise rumors that the President will provide a surprise choice; perhaps under Secretary of State Stettinius. If it can be shown that Mr. Stettinius is not like the President a resident of New York State, which would disqualify him under the Constitution.

The bosses were mostly against Mr. Roosevelt in the 1932 convention. Now they are for him as the only means of helping their local tickets and of making more probable a slice of Federal patronage. But their minds run on to days when they will have the run of things once more in party matters. And it certainly looks as if they felt that those days are just around the corner.

subject, thus: cadets are . . . attraction. If the sentence is rearranged thus, "The principal attraction at West Point," etc., the subject is "attraction," and takes the singular verb, as: Attraction is . . . cadets. Therefore, these sentences are correct.

The cadets on parade are the principal attraction at West Point.

The principal attraction at West Point is the cadets on parade.

Q Our class knows, of course, that Archie's "leave" in his song title, "Leave us face it, we're in love," is incorrect, but we are not sure that we understand why. Can you clarify this for us?

A Leave should not be used in the meaning of "to permit." The verb leave implies a going away from, as: Leave the room; he will leave soon for the East.

The verb let is used in the sense of "to permit, allow," as: Let us go for a walk; will you let me have the book; let us face it, we're in love.

The confusion between "leave" and "let" is caused by the fact that either is correct in such constructions as: Leave me alone; let me alone; leave it alone; let it alone. But the words should not be otherwise interchanged.

Wrong: "Leave go of it."

Right: Let go of it.

Wrong: (Sports announcer): "He left that one go by."

Right: He let that one go by.

Wrong: "Leave me pass, please."

Right: Let me pass, please.

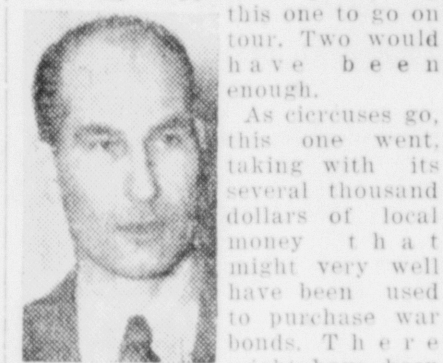

The Man Who Came to Dinner

COME AND GONE—The circus that showed in Escanaba recently was a combination of high prices and mediocre entertainment. If, as the circus barker claimed, the show was one of three permitted to tour the country in wartime, somebody slipped in "permitted" some one to go on tour. Two would have been enough.

Dunathan

As circuses go, this one went, taking with its several thousand dollars of local money that it might very well have been used to purchase war bonds. There might have been some excuse for this one to go on tour, but only children young enough not to have seen a circus before got a return in entertainment.

It is true there were one or two good feature acts in the circus, but they could not swing the balance of the whole to the side of good entertainment. Admittedly the circus is operating under a wartime handicap. There wasn't one young man of draft age in the show, which is as it should be.

But what hit the patrons hard was the high prices. They expected to see a show that would give them more than they got for their money. As one man said bitterly as he helped his wife up the row of plank seats: "Maybe if you fall and break a leg we can collect some money from them—they've got all of ours."

NEGROES IN SERVICE—Sometime the full story of the American negro's part in the present war may be told, but today it still remains on the taboo list. There have been persistent and undeniable stories that the negro has been relegated, largely, to the dirtiest, the hardest, the most dangerous labor jobs in this war.

That he serves well and uncompensated is to his credit. That he is required to do so is the shame of America.

At Port Chicago, Calif., Tuesday there was an explosion of two naval ammunition ships while they were being loaded at a dock. Three hundred and fifty persons died in the horrifying blast.

Reports the Associated Press: "Most of the dead were negroes, members of navy loading crews at the Port Chicago ammunition magazine."

The American negro, if he is ever to attain anything approaching equality of social and citizenship status, must be presented honestly. He cannot forever be pictured as a brutal rapist and honor guest at lynchings parties. In this war against an unholy alliance of racial bigotry and intolerance the negro is dying for an American ideal which he has never realized.

HARDLY FRANKS—For some reason adults profess not to understand, boys of a certain age will occasionally go on a spree of property destruction that leaves parents and police flabbergasted.

Recent experience of the police in Escanaba shows that they are getting to the root of the trouble when they take up these property destruction cases with the parents of the boys. There were five boys, all under 14 years of age, who had broken a total of 34 windows in late June and early July. Nineteen of these windows were in a power crane housing in the C&NW railroad yards.

Some officers might have been inclined to discount the window breakage as "just boyish pranks" and let the matter drop. But Escanaba police by careful investigation finally rounded up the five guilty boys, obtained admissions that they had broken the windows—and then called in the parents as well as the boys for a long conference.

The talks brought out one important factor: The boys had

By bringing the parents into the talks, the police impressed on them their duty as parents, and at the same time forcibly directed attention of the boys to seriousness of their offense. Perhaps it points the way to future handling of situations involving youth. Perhaps we need classes in training adults so they may be better parents.

FREAK STORM—The rain storm Tuesday night that struck Escanaba with a fury of sudden wind and a crash of lightning and thunder was a freak. Nearly an inch of rain fell in Escanaba—but at Groos the wall of water ended almost as if the storm had been cut in two with a giant knife. From Groos north no rain fell.

TIME FOR CHANGE—The ban on cars passing through the Escanaba one dock defense area on the Escanaba-Wells road should be lifted immediately. There is no longer the necessity for banning this traffic with the reasonable precautions now being taken to safeguard the area.

At the present time buses, mail trucks, persons on bicycles, and pedestrians may pass through on the highway if they are residents of Wells, or employed at Wells or at the Escanaba Coal company dock. But the ban still continues on car traffic, which must travel at least twice as far because of the blockade.

Apparently the intention of military authorities is to make no changes in defense control for the area, although conditions have changed and the overall situation is no longer critical. One effort has been made by the city of Escanaba to have the highway opened, but this failed. Perhaps it's time for a showdown.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Chicago—President Roosevelt, who understands human nature better than some who have sat in the White House, knows that human nature loves a good scrap. A good scrap has been going on here over the Vice Presidency—a far better scrap than the Republicans staged last month—and everyone is happy.

Pearson

Here is the line-up of candidates for the job which sometimes goes begging, but for which today, with a fourth term candidate, there is the maddest scramble in history:

Henry Wallace—"H. A." or "Agard," as his intimates call him, has been so cussed and discussed that there are few details about him the public doesn't know—except one: his secretary. The latter is bulky, slow-moving, shrewd Harold Dixon Young, as politically minded, as good at back-slapping as Wallace is bad at both. . . . Texas is the heart of the anti-Wallace revolt, but largely thanks to Texan Young. Wallace is top man in the running, with by all odds the largest popular support (and the least support from old-line politicians). . . . It was big Harold who met Wallace in Seattle, warned him of the Washington conspiracy to get him to step out of the race, pepped him to stay in and fight. . . . If Wallace wins, big Harold can take a lot of blows.

Jimmy Byrnes—Whether they agree with him or not, many people are sympathetic with ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes. He took himself down from a life job on the Supreme Court for the thankless job of War Mobilizer. In 1940, he bowed out as a Vice Presidential candidate because of his religion. . . . At the last convention, Jim Farley was asked whether the Catholic vote would be alienated because a Protestant. Byrnes replied that it would hurt. Byrnes stepped aside. . . . Today Byrnes' friends believe the electorate would be broad-minded when it comes to religion. But they are worried over another factor—the Negro vote, which, in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis, can swing an election. . . . Byrnes' Senatorial stand on an anti-lynching bill and poll taxes would never help him in Harlem. . . . As one South Carolina friend put it, "Jimmy has come to Chicago with the lightning rod up. If the lightning strikes, he won't run away."

"Dear Alben" Barkley—The senior Senator from Kentucky has a lot of Southern support behind him, plus some from the North. But he dicated thumbs down on Barkley. Reason, though not so stated, is Barkley's stinging attack on FDR when he vetoed the tax bill. . . . The President forgives a lot, but some things he doesn't, and this is one of them. He likes Barkley, gets along with him, sees quite a bit of him, but doesn't want him as running mate. . . . It is reported that the big liquor companies are for Alben. The Louisville Courier Journal recently has been kidding him about saving a fund of thousands of dollars to buy mint juleps, with singing waiters to serve them at Barkley headquarters in Chicago.

Justice Bill Douglas—No vote-getter, but a great human being. Roosevelt probably prefers Douglas next to Wallace. If Douglas could win votes, FDR might prefer him more. . . . Born in Minnesota, raised in Washington State, Douglas worked his way to New York on a freight train, studied law at Columbia. . . . One reason FDR thinks well of Douglas is because he has the reputation of always putting the bird on Dewey. In Columbia Law School, Dewey and Douglas were classmates—Douglas at the top of the class, Dewey near the bottom. In law case arguments, Dewey is reported to have shunned Douglas as his opponent. . . . Later, when Douglas was on the Securities and Exchange Commission and Dewey was New York district attorney, the latter made Douglas an offer to form a law partnership. Douglas declined.

Judge Sherman Minton—When Senator from Indiana, Minton was a real crusader, a tough fighter for Roosevelt. He is popular with the politicians, would be popular with the people. . . . But since he retired to the cloistered obscurity of the Circuit Court of Appeals, the public has forgotten him. . . . Minton might tip the balance and carry Indiana. . . . FDR thinks he would be a good man.

Senator Harry Truman—The gentleman from Missouri has made such a name for himself as a fair-minded, forthright prober of war scandals that the public has forgotten he was a product of the famous Kansas City Pendergast machine. . . . Doubtless "District Attorney" Dewey would capitalize on this. . . . But the general public believes in Truman; has confidence in him.

Governor J. M. Broughton—of North Carolina is the only Southerner who would have Negro support. As trustee of Shaw University, a Negro college in Raleigh, he voted to install a Negro president. About 30,000 Negroes voted for him for Governor. There have been no racial disturbances under him in North Carolina.

Ambassador John Winant, former GOP Governor of New Hampshire, has been one of FDR's personal candidates. But the party bosses have virtually turned thumbs down.

Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, keen-minded and forthright, is one of the best qualified men in the race. But due to the prejudices of American politics, two things are against him: (1) his religion and (2) the fact that his State has few votes in the Electoral College.

CAFE PRICES TO BE FROZEN

5-Cent Coffee Returns
To Restaurants
On July 31

The Office of Price Administration yesterday completed plans for administration in Upper Michigan of the new national restaurant price regulation which will become effective July 31.

Lawrence L. Farrell, District Director of OPA explained that this regulation was issued to strengthen controls in view of the fact that in many areas demand for meals has almost doubled.

The new regulation specifies that by August 16, 1944, every restaurant shall post prominently, on a placard provided by OPA, the ceiling prices of 40 basic items served.

OPA will select the 40 basic items to be posted in Upper Michigan.

In addition to the 40 basic items, the new regulation extends to the entire nation the present April 4-10, 1943 freeze date for restaurant prices, which is now in effect in most of the country.

Mr. Farrell explained that increases in the size or quality of portions served do not constitute a reason for raising prices. This provision was included with the approval of the National Restaurant Industry Advisory Committee which concurred in the view that it would be undesirable to permit practices which would raise prices because of the inflationary results.

Five-cent coffee will return to many restaurants. The new regulation provides that, beginning July 31, no eating or drinking establishment may charge more than five cents for a cup or pot of hot coffee, including cream and sugar, unless it charged a higher price than five cents during the seven-day period, October 4-10, 1942, and has filed a statement to that effect with the local War Price and Rationing Board. Lead coffee remains under the April 4-10, 1943, freeze date.

Party Bosses Plentiful At Democratic Pow-Wow

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Chicago—I wish I knew what kind of indestructible stuff these Democratic bosses are made of. They turn up every four years looking as untouched by time as though they had discovered the fountain of youth.

Especially impressive is New Jersey's Frank Hague. He was hardly a freshman, 12 years ago, when he made one of the few mistakes of his career here in Chicago and with held his delegate strength from New York's Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Time and Mayor Hague's zeal have repaired that error. He sails through the crowded lobby of the Stevens hotel with a positively boyish enthusiasm, greeting old friends and new acquaintances with joviality that has in it something regal. He looks, I swear, younger than he did when I last saw him seven years ago in Florida.

His companion is Chicago's Mayor Kelly, who leans more on dignity than Hague. Time has been kind to Kelly, too, during the Roosevelt years.

Both Parties Have Them In our big sprawling Democracy bosses have been a common phenomenon in both parties. They may be, at our stage of political development, an inevitable necessity despite the preachments of all right thinking citizens. Yet it has always seemed to me that Roosevelt relied on them far more than was necessary.

The plain fact all along is that they needed him much more than he needed them. Nevertheless he took the easiest course and relied on the big fellows to deliver the vote.

That was especially true in the campaign of 1936, when Roosevelt's popularity was at its height. I remember following him around all that campaign and hearing him make what was, up until the last ten days, an old fashioned full dinner pail campaign.

When he went into Jersey City, Mayor Hague turned the town loose. Salvos of bombs and rockets split the air. Thousands upon thousands of school children stood along the streets waving flags. The mayor had declared a public holiday and almost every business house was closed.

Never once did Roosevelt mention the Supreme Court issue. Two months after his great victory, the court enlargement scheme came as a surprise to everyone. The president had not trusted the people enough.

Breaults Receive Letter From Son's Ship Commander

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Breault, 428 S. 14th street, whose son Auvergne S. Breault, torpedoman's mate 2/c, has been listed as missing in action since D-Day have received a letter from the commander of the ship aboard which their son served. The text of the letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. and Mrs. Breault: It is with the deepest sympathy and regret that I write you on behalf of Auvergne's shipmates concerning the circumstances of his status as 'missing in action.'"

During the action in which our ship was lost, Auvergne was at his usual battle station, on the torpedo tube mount. His ship, the CORRY, was assigned the duty of supporting the landing of the troops in the invasion of Europe on June 6, 1944, and lead the very first boat waves toward the beach in the early hours of that historical day.

Auvergne did his bit in silencing shore batteries that were trying to hold up the landing of our troops. He helped to maintain the torpedo mount in alert readiness in the event of any surface attack that might develop. An explosion took place at 6:33 a. m., June 6, 1944, after which he could no longer be found and is now considered as missing in action.

The prayers and sympathies of Auvergne's shipmates are with you, Mr. and Mrs. Breault, and we all share your hope that he may yet be alive.

Do not hesitate to call upon me for any further information, as we feel of the CORRY who are left behind that Auvergne will always be one of our shipmates.

Yours sincerely,
George Dewey Hoffman,
Lieut. Comdr., U. S. Navy,
Commanding."

VOTE ON COURT HOUSE ILLEGAL

Only Way To Finance Is By Bond Issue, Says Prosecutor Strom

The question of submitting to the voters of Delta county in November a proposal to finance the construction of a new court house by levying two mills per year for 10 years is not provided for under the law, according to an opinion by Prosecuting Attorney Torval E. Strom.

The opinion was submitted to Escanaba Mayor Sam R. Wickman, O. J. Thorsen, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and to Supervisor Henry Wylie, chairman of the county finance committee.

In meeting recently the county board approved a resolution drawn by the prosecutor at the request of Mayor Wickman in which it was proposed to submit to the people in November the question of financing post-war construction of a new court house. The prosecutor at that time advised the board that he would inquire into the legality of the proposed referendum.

In response to his request, Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton advised Prosecutor Strom that a county sinking fund tax must be levied within the 15 mill limitation.

Prosecutor Strom points out that: "As the full 15 mills are now allocated, it would be impossible to raise any money in such manner and for such purposes."

He continues: "In view of the attorney general's opinion, it is obvious that we cannot submit the question presented by the resolution recently adopted by the board to raise two mills per year for ten years for court house construction, without inviting a lawsuit on the part of some citizen or the state to set aside the action taken as a violation of the constitution."

"Nor do I think the tax limitation in Delta county could be raised two mills per year for five years to create a fund to be used for court house construction."

"The law nowhere provides for such a procedure, or for the use of increased millage for any other purpose than county operating expenses."

"That leaves as the only financing solution for a new court house the matter of submitting a bond issue to the people of Delta county for this purpose which would require the approval of the voters and the Michigan finance commission."

Ending his letter Prosecutor Strom suggested it might be well to hold a meeting of the finance committee of the county board and the city commission to go over the matter thoroughly.

Operating Records Must Be Maintained By Truck Operators

Truck and other commercial motor vehicle operators, who hold certificates of war necessity, are required to continue keeping operating records, Edward J. Konkol, district manager of the highway transport department of ODT at Green Bay, Wis., announced yesterday.

Although records of miles traveled, motor fuel used and tire inspections made, are more important than ever, they may be kept in the operators' own simplified form, if more convenient, Mr. Konkol stressed.

The required forms for operators and a tire inspection report for fleet operators, formerly furnished by ODT, has been cancelled and will no longer be supplied.

Manager Konkol points out: "If operators still have a supply of these forms, they may continue to use them." Konkol said. "These reports must be kept available in the offices of truck operators for the inspection of the ODT."

It was pointed out that under ODT regulations, all operators must keep a record of miles traveled, motor fuel consumed, and tire inspections made. Different types of operators are required to keep different kinds of records. Some operators are required to keep records of loads carried. The farmer, for instance, is required to keep all records except the loads per vehicle in trips to and from farms, Mr. Konkol states.

Other operators must keep records of loads and truck days lost. Tire inspections must still be made every

PRICES FIXED ON BEER SALES

New Ceilings To Go Into Effect In Peninsula
August 21

Effective August 21, flat price ceilings on beer and other malt beverages sold at retail, either in containers or on draft, for consumption on the premises, will be established by the Office of Price Administration in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and throughout the region comprising the states of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan and West Virginia.

The prices established for malt beverages will apply to all eating and drinking establishments, except common carriers and private clubs.

The new order establishes prices in three group classifications and for two types of beer, premium and standard. The premium beer in bottles will be priced five cents per 12 ounce bottle higher than the same size bottle of standard brew.

Most of the Upper Peninsula beer dealers will qualify for a classification of 2b, for which the price of premium beer has been fixed at 19c plus tax, and 14c plus tax for standard beer in 12 ounce containers. Premium draft beer will sell at 10c for an eight ounce glass and standard beer will sell for 10c for a 10 ounce glass, plus tax.

Only beers listed by the OPA as premium beer, based upon cost, will earn the higher price. Beers listed by the OPA as premium beers are Berghoff, Blatz, Brau, Meister, Budweiser, Carling's Red Cap, Kingsbury, Miller High Life, North Star, Old Heidelberg Pilsener, Pabst Blue Ribbon, Rhineland, Royal Bohemian, Schlitz and Trophy Pilsener. All other beers are listed as standard and will not be entitled to the premium price.

All retailers will automatically fall into the 3b classification, but they can qualify for a higher rating by filing reports with their local war price and rationing board showing that their charges for beer in the base period April 4-10, 1943 were equal to or higher than the prices now fixed by the OPA.

The 3b classification prices for bottled beer is 16 cents for premium beer and 11 cents for standard. The price in the 2b category are 19c and 14c and the 1b classification prices are 24c and 19c. Local OPA officials reported few local dealers will qualify for the 1b classification, but most will qualify for the 2b category.

Emphasis is made upon the fact that the price ceilings are for sale on the premises only. A separate order may be issued later to cover off the premises sales.

SAM JACKSON RISES RAPIDLY

Chairman Of Democratic Convention Rated
As Fine Orator

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Correspondent

Chicago—Of all the characters to emerge in glory from the Democratic National convention, the Hon. Samuel Dillon Jackson emerges the farthest.

Today he is permanent chairman of the convention, yielding the gavel over the 1178 delegates assembled here to select a vice-presidential nominee, making an oration in his own right. He is the man who got the 1178 delegates assembled here to select a vice-presidential nominee, making an oration in his own right. He is the man who got the 1178 delegates assembled here to select a vice-presidential nominee, making an oration in his own right. He is the man who got the 1178 delegates assembled here to select a vice-presidential nominee, making an oration in his own right.

Edson

old opponent in that debate, still a good tenor but in another quartette now, led the singing in a little parody number with a refrain that went, "Jackson for Governor, Jackson for Governor." The boy who lost the debate was now his party's choice for chief executive of the Hoosier state—was even being mentioned as a dark horse possibility for the vice-presidency.

Failed for Congress

Sam Jackson's political rise is something of a paradox in that the only public office he was ever elected to was that of county prosecutor. He ran for Congress once, and as in his first oratorical contest, he lost. He was appointed attorney general of Indiana, could have had another term at it under Governor Henry F. Schriker, but gave it up to go back to his family and his law practice in Fort Wayne. His wife is a Michigan girl. Their youngest son, Sam, Jr., is 10. Two older sons of 25 and 20 are in the army. Sam senior was a captain in the last war but never got overseas. He is 49. Imagine his surprise when Governor Schriker appointed him to the United States Senate.

Jackman made few speeches in Washington as Senator—on one on peace, he recalls, and one on the bog situation. He dusted off one of his earlier masterpieces on "The Dignity of Man" which he had prepared originally for the Quest Club in Fort Wayne, and his speech before the Pennsylvania Democrats, on "Prelude to Peace" did a lot to establish his reputation with the party leaders as an orator.

Ordinarily, when he has to write a speech, he goes to bed at night, mulling the thing over in his mind. A couple of hours later he says he wakes up with the whole thing figured out. Sitting in his pajamas on the bed, he scribbles it out in longhand on a big tablet. Next morning, he dictates first draft to a secretary.

WAR REPORTER GIVES SPEECH

Quentin Reynolds Takes Rap At Republican
Platform

Chicago Stadium, (AP)—War Correspondent Quentin Reynolds tonight told the men at the fighting fronts know a military and industrial miracle has been performed at home "under the leadership of their Commander-in-Chief and ours—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

And these men have become "very sensitive to a commodity which they call bunk," he said, complying with that statement a reference to the Republican platform as compounded of "double talk."

"Our boys abroad know about platforms," Reynolds declared. "A platform is some a river so that you can get to the other side. Soldiers test every plank in a platform before they use it."

"By now, perhaps they have waded through the delightful double-talk of the Republican platform and I doubt if they've found a half a dozen planks in it strong enough to bear even the light load of the Republican promises."

Reynolds called no names but much of his speech appeared couched in reply to Republican Representative Clare Boothe Luce's address last month to the opposition party's convocation. Miss Luce, among other things, questioned whether "G. I. Joe" and his slain brother "G. I. Jim" might not have found another fate had the Nation's Foreign Policy been in other hands than President Roosevelt's in the immediate pre-war years. "I do not propose to speak for your son abroad and I would never commit the unholy sacrilege of speaking for his dead brother who has been killed in combat," Reynolds said.

"No man—or woman—can speak for him. We can only accept his sacrifice humbly and not presume to speak for him with our unworthy tongues."

But he had lived with the G. I. Joe, Reynolds said, and he knew one of the first things they had learned was that this is no "foreign war."

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE 1-204: Eileen P., aged 18, is in love with a soldier.

"Just before he left for the southwest Pacific, he had a couple of days leave and wired Eileen to come to California to see him," her mother informed me.

"I felt that it was too costly a trip for me to go there with her, so I let her go alone."

She is a good girl and capable of taking care of herself. But some of my friends have raised their eyebrows at the thought of permitting a young woman to travel half way across the continent alone.

"Dr. Crane, what do you think? Should I have gone along as a chaperone?"

DIAGNOSIS: In the former generations of prudery it was customary for parents or other people to chaperone their youth.

Nowadays we have greatly improved on this method, for we teach our children the facts of life and encourage them to develop self-reliance before they are even of high school age.

Thus, we place an ever-present chaperone in their brains, in the form of these habits with reference to right and wrong.

By the old-fashioned method, young people felt that if they slipped out of the house and met each other clandestinely, then anything was permissible, for their chaperone wasn't present to veto it.

How To Sleep at Night
The old-fashioned parent couldn't sleep at night because he worried lest Johnny or Susie do something that papa wouldn't approve of. The modern parent doesn't need to develop such insomnia, for the well trained youth of today carries his chaperone in his head, and the latter is always operative, at least as long as the young folks don't anesthetize it with alcohol.

In teaching morality, it is always better to train the individual to be responsible for his own good behavior, than to have him look upon a parent or policeman as the custodian of ethics.

When trained to look upon his elders as the enforcers of right living, there is a tendency for the child to feel that he is entitled to do anything he wishes, if these adults happen to be absent.

Or if he can circumvent the adult law-enforcers, as by speaking out at night, then his own conscience is relatively clear, for those adults aren't present to tell him "No, No, Johnny," or "No, No, Susie."

Old Fashioned Parents
Many of our old-fashioned parents may have been shocked in the past decade by my scientific discussion of sex and morals.

You have been inclined to "shush, shush" such matters, feeling that ignorance is bliss. You have carried that sex knowledge in your own adult heads, and have thought that you could save your children embarrassment and shame by always being custodian of such facts.

But this places an undue responsibility on your shoulders. You must worry every minute your child is away from you, if you haven't prepared the latter to look out for himself or herself.

Naturally, you will fuss and fret, if you have tried to nursemaid your young folks until marriage, but find they often slip away from your parental nursemaids. The nursemaids should properly feel panicky in such a situation.

Teach them to be their own ethical nursemaids or moral policemen and you can sleep nights. Send for my bulletin "Sex Problems of Young People," enclosing 3 stamped envelope, plus a dime.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

TOM BOLGER
MANAGERTOURIST TRADE IS DULL HERE
Little Or No Business
Is Reported By Operators

Little or no business at all is the report of operators of overnight cabins and resorts in the Gladstone area regarding tourist trade here this summer.

At the registration booth at the tourist park maintained by the city, only one person has registered for the summer, according to Leo Anderson, liegeward at the beach, who also takes charge of the booth. The lone registration was by a tourist living in the Upper Peninsula.

Operators of over-night cabins and resorts are feeling the restrictions on war time travel to a greater degree than they did last summer. The tourist who stops to spend a single night in a place has practically disappeared from the highways, one operator reported. This is probably due to the fact that his tires are a year older and he realizes the necessity of conserving them, and to the reduction in value of gas coupons.

Owners of resorts where tourists booked cabins for periods of a week and longer also report that business is slack compared to last season and attribute it to crowded trains and buses. As a result people cannot travel in any degree of comfort and so the majority of them have decided to stay at home this summer.

GLADSTONE

Sgt. Chester Schram
Buries Normandy Dead

BY HAL BOYLE
(Advance) With American troops in Normandy, July 10, (delayed, AP)—The luckiest outfit to land on Normandy's shell-swept beaches on invasion day was a group whose job was not to fight but to bury dead.

"We were just lucky—we didn't have a single casualty," said Pvt. James F. White, 23 year old former railway electrician helper of Louisville, Ky., who waited ashore at 4 p. m.

The beach they landed on was the hottest along the whole landing area. For more than 12 hours they were helplessly pinned to the shelter of an abandoned German trench. It was between two concrete shelters which they were afraid to enter because of possible boobytraps.

"We saw men all around us being killed," said Platoon Leader Lt. Robert E. Berry, 26 of Wilmington, Del. An undertaker in civil life, he had helped bury some Pearl Harbor dead while stationed in Hawaii.

White told of the horror of those first blistering hours and days in France as he and three comrades—Sgt. Chester Schram, Gladstone, Mich., Pvt. Alfonso Ortega, Los Angeles, Calif., and Pvt. Cecil C. Deel, Glendening, Va.—sprayed white paint on a group of crosses in the American cemetery in France.

"I was glad I was six feet one and a half inches tall when we slid into water up to our shoulders and started wading ashore carrying our caskets," said White. "But when we hit that beach I would have been glad to have been a midget."

"We were pinned down immediately by sniper and '88' fire and couldn't move until the following morning when our troops had pushed inland. We started to work immediately.

"I never in my life saw anything like that beach and hope I never do again. Our boys had paid

The Gladstone state police post was advised at 11 a. m. to discontinue the blockade which had been in effect since Wednesday night at the junction of highways US-2 and 41.

RIALTO BLDG.TAX PAYMENT
RATE IS NORMAL

Approximately one-fourth of the summer city taxes have been paid to date, although the deadline for payment is still approximately a month away, city hall officials announced yesterday. Total payments to date are $5,877.58.

Taxes collectable this year amount to $25,934.99, an increase of nearly $200 over last year, when the amount collected was $25,698.06. Payments became due on July 15 and the deadline is August 15.

There are approximately 2,000 taxpayers in the city, but no record has been kept of the number who have made payments to date. However, payments are running about the same as last year, according to Otto Haberman, clerk, who reminded taxpayers that taxes must be paid by the deadline in order that penalty charges may be avoided.

Plan Farmers' Day At Chatham Station

Experimental work with tomatoes is the most important horticultural work promised for visitors at Farmers' Day, Chatham, by Perry Bowser, station horticulturist. Four selections from Hawaii are being grown having been received from that country in return for the courtesy of a sample of Early Chatham sent by Mr. Bowser. These selections, like Early Chatham, are apparently non-staking. Another non-staking variety being grown for the first time in Redland, from Nebraska. Three commercial non-staking varieties are also being grown—Firesteel, Victor and Bounty.

An effort to find the best way to start tomato plants is being made by Mr. Bowser. Early Chatham plants were transplanted under hot caps May 29, seeded under hot caps the same date, transplanted under hot caps June 1 and transplanted in the open June 10. Four staking varieties were transplanted under hot caps May 29 and have been staked and pruned. A comparison is being made with Early Chatham grown from potted plants and those grown in a flat.

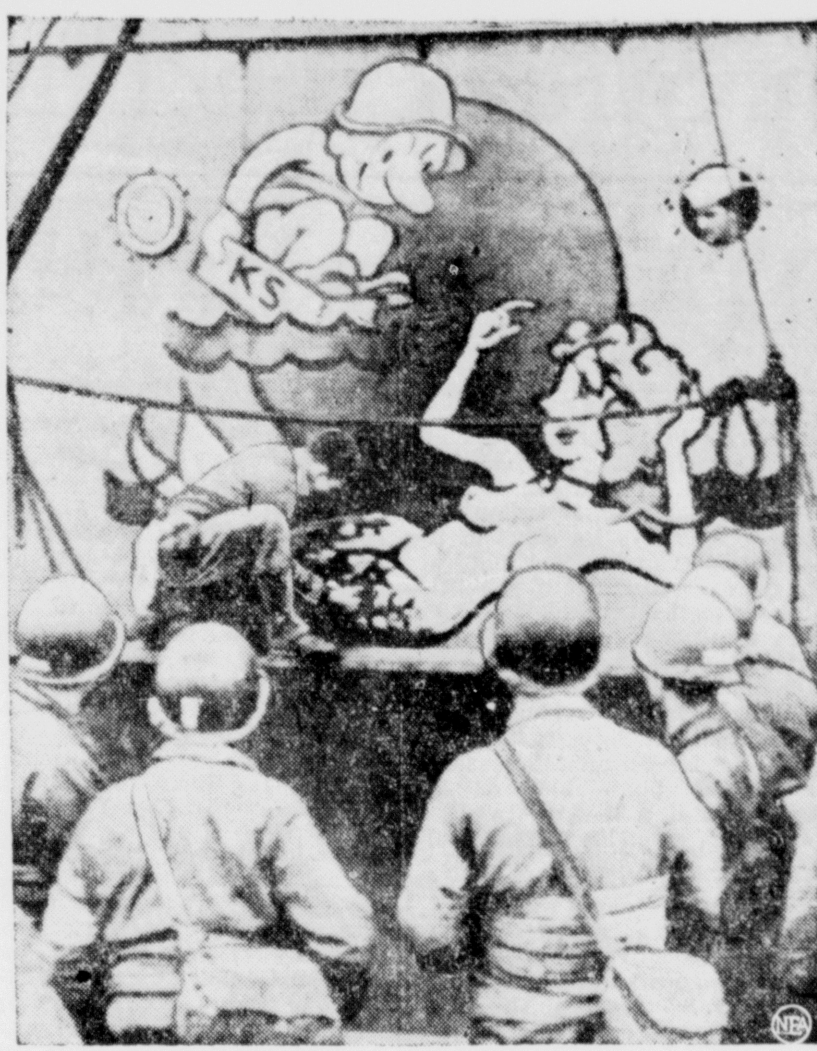

Sweet corn variety trials are being continued with the object of finding the earliest maturing variety for Upper Peninsula conditions yield and quality being considered. New varieties this year are as follows: Golden Nugget, Our Choice, Golden Treasure and Golden Pride. Varieties that are being continued from previous years are: Seneca 60, Extra Early Bantam, Surprise, North Star, Golden Sunshine, Marcess, Bancess, Northern Cress and Golden Bantam.

Four varieties of head lettuce are being grown—Great Lakes, Cornell 456, Imperial 44 and Imperial 847. Three dates of planting were used—transplanted on May 13, seeded in the field May 13, and seeded in the field June 1. Great Lakes is the variety being sold this year for the first time by some seed companies. It was proved as an outstanding variety originally at the Chatham station and is recommended by Mr. Bowser above any other variety for Upper Peninsula conditions.

With new varieties of rutabagas in the picture Mr. Bowser is growing seven in a variety test for table stock purposes. The list includes Early Neckless, Pajberg, Bangholm, Albergström, of Buck County type, Canadian Gem, New American Purple Top (short neck strain), American - Purple Top, Laurentian.

One plot of interest to visitors will be an area where manure was applied at the rate of 40 tons per acre. Being grown here are three varieties of celery as well as smaller plantings of tomatoes, peppers, head lettuce and cauliflower.

The summer management of apple trees as carried on at Chatham will be shown by Mr. Bowser. This is the recommendation of T.

The sailor in the porthole and the soldiers on deck are rapt spectators as a pal puts a "paint-up" gal on the wheelhouse bulkhead of a Liberty ship en route to French beachhead to unload supplies. Swedish Home Of Interned Americans Built By Fabulous Mineral Wealth

Living in baronial mansions in a beautiful lake region of Sweden where the July thermometer hovers around 59 degrees Fahrenheit, are the American airmen forced down over this neutral Scandinavian country. The American internees are finding this mild summer weather ideal for baseball.

Falun, Swedish interment center for the Americans, is an inland town of 15,000 residents, 129 miles northwest of Stockholm, says the National Geographic Society. It is the largest town in the province of Dalarna (Dalecarlia).

When Freedom King The town is a patriotic shrine of Swedish liberty, and a memorial to the mineral wealth of Sweden. At Falun more than four centuries ago was touched off the revolution, led by Gustavus Vasa, that freed Sweden from Danish domination.

On a rocky promontory jutting into Lake Rönne is a long, low house with an overhanging story from which the future Gustavus I in 1520 escaped by a knotted sheet, when his hiding place was discovered.

A. Merrill, extension specialist in horticulture who worked out the program.

betrayed to the Danes. It was in this province that he first assembled his little army of liberation. The great houses of the Americans are in the old "Copper Town" on the west side of Falun River, and belonged to the copper barons when Falun was the center of Sweden's greatest mineral wealth.

Mines Inspired Poets The copper mine which built the town several centuries ago is exhausted and now deserted. Its twelve miles of galleries are closed to visitors because of the danger from falling rock. But its history dominates the town, and its traditions remain.

Most popular is the story recorded in several languages, in poetry and opera, of the young miner, entombed in 1670. He was found forty-nine years later, so well preserved by the fumes of copper vitriol that his former fiancée, then an old woman, could identify him.

The mine still belongs to the original operating company, one of the oldest joint stock companies in existence. After the middle of the 17th century the mine produced a half million tons of copper, a ton of gold, and fifteen tons of silver. The company today owns iron mines, steel mills, about three-quarter-mile acres of forest land, sawmills, pulp and paper mills.

Falun is the capital of Dalarna Province, home of the provincial governor. It has no tall buildings, and from the surrounding wooded hills the church spires are seen rising above the trees and the tile roofs of white stucco buildings.

Pagan Customslinger On As the capital, Falun leads the annual observance of the great provincial holiday, the Mid-Summer Festival held in all the towns of Dalarna on St. John's Eve, June 23, and the following day. In their colorful national costumes of ancient folk songs and dance out the twilight night around wreathed maypoles.

This celebration dates back to pagan times. Antiquities of the province also are preserved in Falun, in the museum, in collections of paintings, and in the exhibits of relics. Near the deserted copper mine is a museum that tells the centuries-old story of Swedish mining and related industries.

Old customs are patriotically preserved, but Falun is a modern town in every respect. American motor cars are not uncommon. Denot baggage is moved by rubber-tired, electrically driven trucks. Bicycles are popular throughout the province.

BE CALM WHEN REPORTING FIRE

Name, Address And Type Of Blaze Should Be Given

One of the fire department's chief gruzzes against people who report blazes is that they often are excited and do not give sufficient information to enable firemen to get to the blaze as quickly as possible. According to Fire Chief Elmer Boal, the information that should be given by persons reporting a fire is their name, street and house number and the type of fire.

The last, he says, is a source of wonder to most people. They do not understand why it is necessary for the department to know at that time if the fire is in the grass, in the house, or just a chimney fire. There are several reasons why the information should be given, he continued. First it determines what equipment should be taken to the fire. Second, it determines how many men are needed and if it is necessary to call the auxiliary firemen.

In the case of a grass fire, only a pumper is generally needed and it is not necessary to call the auxiliaries. For any type of house fire, he explained, both pumps are taken immediately. When it is just a chimney fire, auxiliaries are not called but if the house itself or the roof should be burning, both pumps are taken and the auxiliaries are called. He said the necessity for taking the ladder truck was determined by the type of building that was on fire. That fact can generally be determined by the address or the name.

Another point that was stressed by the chief was the need for remaining calm while reporting a fire. Sometimes people are so hysterical that it is difficult to understand them and they fail to give the necessary information.

One of the firemen, Ray McCarney, recalled an instance where a woman became so hysterical that she reverted to her native tongue which was French. Not being able to understand French or calm the woman so she would speak English and knowing of a woman in town who spoke French, the firemen changed it and went to her house which fortunately happened to be the right one.

So far this year, the fire department has had 54 calls. According to Boal, this is about equal to last year at the same time. During the whole of 1943, 99 calls were received by the department.

Spring is the busiest time, Boal said, because of grass fires.

Boy Scouts Leave For Red Jack Camp

Twelve boys from the American Legion Boy Scout troop will leave Sunday for Camp Red Jack. Half of the group will stay only the third week and the others will remain for both the third and fourth weeks of the summer session.

The boys are: Jim Fagan, Paul Vesina, Bill McKenzie, Don McKensie, Paul McNamara, Don Jackson, Don Curran, Jack Stewart, Charles MacNamara, Dick Harbick, Jim Nelson, Bill Eck.

The camp located on Red Jack Lake is owned by the Red Buck Scout council which covers Schoolcraft, Delta and Alger counties. In the four years of ownership several improvements in the grounds and buildings have been made. The camp is approximately 40 miles from Manistique.

Transportation has been provided for the group which will meet at 1 o'clock at the corner of Oak and Range streets with full equipment.

Teletype Machine Installed By W. U.

Installation of a teletype machine in the Western Union office has been completed and the machine is now in operation. It is one of three stations on a line between Manistique, Gladstone, and Escanaba which is the relay point.

According to Western Union employees, it will be a great help since any messages are automatically typed and no operator is needed to take down the words as was required by the old dot-dash system. It will save time in that the person in attendance will be free while messages are being received to answer the telephone or take care of people at the counter.

Pro mthe company standpoint, repeats will not be necessary on messages whose transmission is interrupted by a telephone call or persons entering the office.

Rag Collection To Be Saturday

City Manager Charles D. Mattson has stated that the previously announced rag and paper collection will be held Saturday. The city-wide pickup will begin at 9 a. m., on both sides of the city. Rags and paper are to be tied in bundles to prevent them from blowing and placed either at the curb or on the porches.

Waste paper and rags are particularly important now with the increased flow of materials going to the invasion forces since there are over 7,000 articles for the armed forces wrapped entirely in paper.

Manus urges everyone to have the waste materials out early Saturday morning so that the trucks can get it all in one round of the city. The city is cooperating with the ODT in running its trucks as little as possible to save gasoline, tires, and the trucks themselves.

Community Sing Is Being Planned

A community sing is being arranged for July 31 with the Rotary club, the Manistique Women's club, the Lions club, and the city band cooperating in the sponsorship.

Arrangements are not yet complete for the affair under the direction of Russell Watson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, but it is thought that the words for the songs will be printed on leaflets and distributed to those in attendance. The place will be either the courthouse lawn or the stadium.

Cubs Dumped Into Cellar; Tigers Run Win Streak To Four Games

BRAVES SWEEP TWIN FEATURE

Chicago Drops Both By 5-4 Count; Opener Goes 14 Innings

Boston, July 20 (AP)—The Boston Braves pulled into a sixth-place tie and dumped the Chicago Cubs into the National League cellar today by sweeping a double-header by 5-4 margins, the opener in 14 innings.

Jim Tobin gained his 11th win during the first game, which would have been a regulation shutout but for five Boston errors that enabled the Cubs to score all of their unearned runs. Tobin opened the 14th with a single and scored the winning run after Chuck Workman singled with the bases loaded.

The Cubs had a 4-3 lead until Max Macon homered over the right field fence during the eighth inning of the nightcap. In the ninth, Warren Huston singled and, after being sacrificed, clinched the game by racing home after Connie Ryan doubled. Chicago—

Best Year Of War Ahead For Football

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, July 20 (AP)—From the standpoint of the number of players and interest in the game, football will experience its best year of the war this fall, John L. Griffith, Western Conference commissioner of athletics, predicted today.

Approximately 950 youths reported at 11 major midwestern universities for summer practices, and Griffith said that this turnout "exceeds any we have ever had at any given time."

"There has been a rush to return to the gridiron this fall by larger institutions which were reported at 11 major midwestern universities for summer practices, and Griffith said that this turnout "exceeds any we have ever had at any given time."

Night Baseball May Wear Itself Out, Says Martin

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, July 19 (AP)—There seems to be some fear that the lately-adopted policy of allowing major league teams to play practically as many night games as they want to play will be continued after the war, thus providing stay-out fans with the stock alibi: "Honest, I was sitting up with a sick kid last night."

We don't share this apprehension and see in the present situation, brought about by the wartime emergency, the picture of a kid, yelling for more ice cream, being turned loose behind a soda fountain and told to help himself. Before long he is filled down to his toes and is wondering why he ever liked the stuff in the first place.

That is, the clubs that clamored for more night games have a chance to eat all they want, figuratively speaking, and the appetite is liable to disappear abruptly.

Personally, we always did, and always will, think that baseball is a daylight game, and when we think of the sport we think of a blistering July day with the sun bouncing off the distant outfield in shimmering waves and shirt-sleeved fans guzzling ice cold pop and munching peanuts and hot dogs in lethargic comfort.

Baseball Indigestion Possibly it's because we were brought up to that kind of baseball, and boyhood memories have a habit of lingering with something of a halo. At any rate, that's baseball as we like to see it, and night games just don't fit.

It is recognized that games after dark give many workers a chance to see league baseball who otherwise, except on weekends, might not have the opportunity, but it always has been so, and the major leagues have managed to survive regardless. That is, enough fans were available for weekday games to make it, on the whole, a paying proposition for most clubs.

We have the idea the clubs yowling the loudest for more night games will find that too steady a diet of such games will give the fans indigestion and the crowds will begin to taper down as the novelty wears off. We know that some minor league clubs enjoyed boom crowds for a while after they first installed lights, but we also have seen crowds of 200 or 300 fans rattling around in the parks after the novelty had faded.

The situation should adjust itself more or less automatically in time, with the club owners learning by experience just what percentage of night games to feed their customers. Which is as it should be, as club owners are business men with the making of money their goal, and they are entitled to fix their starting times to lure the heaviest turnstile traffic.

As to a steady diet of night games killing the interest of the younger generation in the game, we can't see that, as kids can read and the sports pages will continue to be filled with baseball, and anyway, some of the most knowing and ardent major league fans live out in Gopher center or Coyote corners and never saw a game in their lives.

Basketball is primarily a night game, and steadily is growing in popularity, and 99 per cent of the boxing matches are held at night, and there is no dearth of fight fans, although it's true you don't have to be educated to the sport to enjoy a fight. Just bloodthirsty, that's all.

ALL STARS PRACTICE

Al Noss, league manager, announces that the All-Star baseball team will report for practice to-caught in war hysteria and gave up the sport," Griffith said. "This is especially true in the Southwestern and Southern Conferences."

Notre Dame and Northwestern each has upwards of 150 candidates working out, nearly half of whom are navy trainees. Exceptionally good turnouts also were reported for other schools with navy units—Michigan, Purdue, Illinois, Marquette, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana, only schools in the Western Conference without navy units, will depend entirely on 17 and 18-year-olds and 4-F's. More than 100 of these lads answered the call at Ohio State.

Of the total 950 football aspirants reporting, only 30 or 35 were holdover lettermen from last year. "Football has always been thought of as a crisp-weather sport with the rah-rah boys wearing coonskins and the girls flannel," observed Griffith. "But now you have 950 lads out practicing in 90 degree temperatures for the love of the game. Then, too, many of our boys in the V-12 enrollment have come in from the fleet after seeing combat service. They have turned to playing football for diversion. And it used to be said no one would play football unless he was hired to do so."

"Coaches will welcome all the boys they can get, and I don't believe there will be any squad cutting. Only those few boys who get discouraged and quit of their own accord will be without a football suit."

Red Sox Take 12 Out Of 13 From Chicago White Sox

Chicago, July 20 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox became the first major league to win the season's series from another today when they made it 12 victories in 13 games with the White Sox by taking a free-hitting game, 11 to 7. They were outbatted by the Chicagoans, however, 16 to 14.

With Bobby Doerr and Bob Johnson each singling in two runs and Tom McBride driving in two more with a double, the Bostonians knocked out Jake Wade for a 6-0 lead in the first two innings. The White Sox, led by Ed Carnett and Roy Schalk, with three hits each, started hammering back until Clem Hausmann had to be called to save Francis "Red" Barrett's fourth victory.

Joe Haynes and Gordon Maltzberger succeeded Wade. Doerr made two hits in five trips to raise his league-leading average to .338, while Pete Fox, the former leader, finally snapped a slump that saw him go hitless 12 straight times with a three-run triple off Maltzberger in the eighth inning.

Pittsburgh's Frankie Zak was the standout of both games. He drove the final two runs over the plate with a triple in the opener and started three double plays that ended the day for Pitcher Ray Starr. In the afternoon Zak's double started the Pirates hot after Dick Barrett, who until then held an edge over Rip Sewell in a pitching duel.

The Pirates won the opener when they hopped on Big Bill Lee for two runs apiece in the third and fourth innings. Buster Adams hit a homer for the Phillies in the second game. Pirate Manager Frankie Frisch was ejected from the field, also in the second, for protesting a called ball.

YORK HAMMERS IN FOUR RUNS

Wakefield Belts Third Homer; Boom Boom Gets Tryout

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA

Detroit, July 20 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers ran their winning streak to four games today by defeating the Washington Senators, 7 to 6, as Rudy York belted his third homer. The victory was Detroit's third of the series and tenth in 13 games with Washington this season.

The Tigers won in spite of a noble experiment, the elevation of bullpen artist Walter "Boom Boom" Back to a starting pitcher that was eminently unsuccessful. It wasn't all Boom Boom's fault, the Tigers making two of their four errors behind him, but he left in the third after failing to protect a three run lead.

Rookie Rufe Gentry, who was dropped back to bullpen duty, stayed on the scene long enough to end a five game losing streak with his fifth victory of the season. Southpaw Hal Newhouseer helped him out of trouble in the ninth.

Detroit's 11-hit attack was centered largely on Milt Canindia, who left under a rain of baseballs in the second, Roger Wolff, second of three Washington pitchers, did much better, but he was charged with the defeat, his sixth. The Senators scored two runs off Beck in the first inning without a hit. George Case walked and George Myatt was hit by a pitch. After a sacrifice, Case scored on Stan Spence's fly and Myatt followed him home when Paul Richards dropped the throw to the plate after Eddie Boland filed out.

Seven Wins In Nine
The Tigers got those back quickly. After Joe Hoover fanned, Eddie Mayo, Roger Cramer, York and Wakefield clustered singles.

That only whetted Detroit's appetite. In the second inning three runs scored on York's two run single and another clutch safety by Hostetler. Hoover beat out a bunt with one out and Mayo walked. Cramer's single filled the bases, and York's blow ended the stay of Canindia. Spence made a circus catch on Wakefield and Hostetler singled Cramer home before Joe Orenko rolled out.

Myatt and Joe Kuhel singled and Spence doubled to open the third, driving out Beck. One run scored on Boland's fly and Rick Ferrell singled another, which squared the count another.

Wakefield homered off the upper right field stands in the fifth to make it 6 to 5. In the sixth Mayo walked and advanced on an infield out, scoring on York's double to left.

In the ninth, Newhouseer came in after Kuhel walked and Spence singled. Pinch hitter Jake Powell forced Spence, and Kuhel scored as pinch hitter Joe Vosmik forced Powell. With Ferrell and Cramer on, Andy Evans was tossed out trying to steal.

The Tigers, with seven victories in nine games in the current home stand, will send Paul Trout after his 13th victory tomorrow. He will be opposed by Mickey Haefer.

Wolverine Football Talent Is Younger

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 15 (AP)—The football talent is running younger at the University of Michigan this year, and it's quite apparent that Coach Fritz Crisler is placing prime emphasis on speed instead of brawn.

After ten days of summer practice, a dozen or so of the 143 candidates appear to measure up to standards of speed and finesse that Coach Fritz Crisler sets for his teams. However, with only eight lettermen back from 1943, there is much work to be done on fundamentals.

Among the new backs getting attention in summer drills are Gene Derrickotte of Defiance, O., and Ralph Chubb of Ann Arbor, Bill Culligan, Detroit halfback who broke his leg in the 1943 season, and Bob Nussbaumer, the squad's third best ground gainer a year ago, are likewise making a good impression.

End Dick Diefenbarg, much heralded high school athlete from Saginaw, is also closely watched. Linemen who are catching the eye of sideline experts are Clem Baum, George Burg, Bruce Hilkene, Art Renner, Marvin Shebel, Quentin Sicks, Dick Smith, Charles Wahl and Harold Watts.

The break in the heat wave was welcomed in the last week. Crisler hopes for more weather in which the players can wear protective gear for contact work.

The members of the winning Royce team were Gardner, Rache, Peterson, Fred Boddy and Bill Boddy. The members of the losing team were Joe Guay, Leo LaFeur, Herman Erickson, William Ettenhofer and Jack Landree.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Lou Little, football coach at Columbia university, has been leading the fight within the collegiate coaches organization for some progressive revisions of the college football rules, and his "platform" shows quite conclusively that he knows what the fans want in the way of football entertainment. Lou Little is really a man after my own heart when he advocates these changes: 1—Move the goal posts back to the goal line. 2—Permit the passer to throw and place back of the scrimmage line. 3—Allow a player recovering a fumble to run as far as he can with the ball.

What's wrong with the Dodgers? That question was asked recently by metropolitan sports writers to Branch Rickey, who has been the target for much criticism from the Brooklyn press. Rickey was accused of getting "coolie" labor to toil for the Dodgers, with the result that the club is having its most disastrous season in years. The Dodge boss unflinchingly denied the accusations, contended the Brooklyn club already has the heaviest overhead in the National league and that the management is willing to outbid any club in the league for player talent that would be beneficial to the Dodgers.

In a home stand that extends to August 1, the Detroit Tigers are relying considerably upon the return to the lineup of Dick Wakefield to push the Bengals once more into a contending position in the American league standings. Wakefield, recently discharged as a naval cadet, reported to the Tigers in excellent physical condition and he immediately proceeded to convince one and all that he retains the old batting punch. To make room for Wakefield in the Tiger outfield, Roger Cramer, veteran gardener who has been in a protracted hitting slump, was benched and Manager O'Neill indicated he might transfer Cramer on the pitching rubber.

Camp Campbell's Baseball Team Has 20 Straight Wins

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

(Advance) New York, July 18 (AP), Midweek Ramble: The 20th Armored Division baseball team of Camp Campbell, Ky., had won 34 straight games at its latest report from Sgt. Mickey McConnell, quite a record in that the only major league in the Division is Lee Grissom, who can only hurl in batting practice because—of all things—some fear.

Manager George Lacy has a bunch of minor league hot-shots, however, including one Howie Muder-ski, whose name seems like murder if you read it quickly. Muder-ski's 17th home run won the 34th game. He formerly played with Durham in the Piedmont League and Johnston in the North State Association as a Brooklyn farm hand, but he wouldn't get away even if he wasn't tied to any club. Sgt. McConnell is a Dodge front office man on service leave. The Armoreders hit 10 home runs, at least one in each of the seven innings, in defeating Berry field, 21 to 9. It's Muder-ski, he says.

25 Strikeouts
Mario Picone, a New York Giant protege, recently fanned 25 men in a game he pitched for Bristol of the Appalachian League which is quite a trick even if the game did go 19 innings. The odd thing about Picone, however, is that he was smuggled off the Brooklyn sandlots from right under the noses of the Dodgers. It was a case of the Dodgers not being able to see the forest for the trees, or however that saying goes. Anyway, Branch Rickey once remarked he believed the territory within 100 miles of New York was the most underdeveloped territory in the country. Maybe he was right as far as the Dodgers are concerned.

Lieut. E. R. Keiffer of the Army Air Corps, stationed at Toledo, Tex., sent in a plug for the unnamed sports editor of the Hilo, Hawaii, Tribune-Herald. This cheerful and capable citizen, the Lieut. says, has done more than his share for morale among service men in his territory, and in addition to his other capabilities is one of the best long-range, catch-as-catch-can football pickers anywhere. In 1942 he batted around .300 in his selections, among his choices being Holy Cross over Boston, Auburn over Georgia, Georgia over Georgia Tech and Fordham over Missouri.

Conversations between General Manager Leo Miller of the Syracuse Chiefs and Chucho Ramos, South American infielder shipped to the club by the Cincinnati Reds:

Ramos—"I come your office tomorrow use telephone?"
Miller—"Sure, come in and use the phone any time."

Ramos—"Fine. I call my mother of Venezuela—three minutes, 18 bucks, whatcha' call 'em, Hokay?"
Miller is slowly recovering from the shock.

Headline telling Brooklyn Dodgers fans they can see team play by contributing to waste paper drive: "You can see Dodgers-Reds for waste paper."

The way the Dodgers have been going recently we didn't think anyone could see them. The bums have used 17 pitchers to date, a few of them baseball pitchers, but let it never be said they aren't trying. In fact, they're very trying at times.

Royce Regulars Defeat Dopesters

The Royce Regulars defeated the Dopesters in a horseshoe match Wednesday night, 18-2. Leo LaFeur won the only single match for the Dopesters while Gardner, Bill and Fred Boddy won all four of their singles matches.

Ettenhofer and Guay won the one double match for the Dopesters. The members of the winning Royce team were Gardner, Rache, Peterson, Fred Boddy and Bill Boddy. The members of the losing team were Joe Guay, Leo LaFeur, Herman Erickson, William Ettenhofer and Jack Landree.

PICK DELEGATES TO STATE MEET

Republicans Of County
In Convention Oppose
Fourth Term

Delta county Republicans assembled in convention at the county courthouse last night named delegates and alternates to the state Republican convention to be held in Grand Rapids in August.

By resolution they expressed themselves as "in favor of bringing the war to a successful conclusion" and in establishment of a permanent peace through an international organization by the sovereign nations of the world. They also looked with disfavor on bureaucratic, one-man government.

Named as delegates to the state Republican convention were Mrs. Isabelle Wilson, Mrs. Cecelia Danial, Mrs. G. W. Traverser, Mrs. Ralph Shiner, H. J. Rushton, Wilmore Berglund and Art Jensen, Escanaba, and C. A. Clark of Gladstone. Alternates chosen included Arthur Goulais, J. P. Norton, Ole Harstad, Dennis McGinn, Clarence Wilson, Harland Yelland, Charles Gunderson and Joseph Rademacher.

Officers of the county committee were announced as Arthur Goulais chairman; Walter Vandeweghe, vice-chairman; Art Jensen, secretary; and Charles Gunderson, treasurer. Two committees named are to be named from each precinct in the county.

John P. Norton served as chairman at the convention last evening with Art Jensen as secretary. On the committee for permanent organization were A. J. Goulais, Mrs. Isabelle Wilson and Ole Harstad of Bark River. Forming the resolution committee were Art H. J. Yelland, Mrs. G. W. Traverser and Dr. A. J. Hughes. On the nominations committee were J. T. Sharpsteen and Mrs. Geo. Harvey.

Candidates for county offices were presented to the convention delegates. Mrs. Wilson, who attended the recent national Republican convention, gave an interesting portrayal of the gathering's highlights.

The resolutions committee report follows:
The Republican Party and independent voters of Delta County, Michigan, in convention assembled, present to the people of the County the following resolutions as our declaration of principles appealing to all of the people for their support.

IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Republican Party is in favor of bringing the war to a successful conclusion by the unconditional surrender of our enemies and to establish a permanent peace by an international organization by the sovereign nations of the world to insure us that another global war will not and cannot be repeated.

IT IS ALSO RESOLVED that we are opposed to any person holding the office of President of the United States for more than two terms of four years each and are in favor of a constitutional amendment to carry this into effect and if the Republicans are successful, they promise to do away with all bureaucratic and one-man government, and place the power of government in the hands of the people and do whatever is necessary to promote industries, reduce taxation and the unnecessary burdens of government, with the view of promoting employment and establishing hubs of industry and employment throughout the country. We are in favor of freeing industry and labor of all unnecessary burdens and to take the necessary steps to insure our young men in the service of their country of sure employment with living wages after their return to civilian life.

The war is not an issue in this political campaign nor is our foreign policy a major question during this war. The question before the people is our domestic policies of bureaucracy in government by which, and through which, our people have lost many of their liberties by regulations which permit the government to interfere in all kinds of businesses which has resulted in the extermination of nearly all small businesses of employment.

We pledge our support to Thomas E. Dewey, our candidate for president, and John Bricker, our candidate for vice president.

We endorse the administration of Governor Kelly and pledge him and his administration our support.

We commend the record of Fred Bradley, our congressman, and urge his election from the standpoint of the whole district.

We promise George Girbach, our candidate for State senator, and Dr. Thomas A. Desilets, our candidate for State representative, our loyal support, and urge their election as representatives of all the people.

The Republican Party presents candidates of ability for county offices and their election will mean efficiency and economy in office, and we ask the voters to give them their undivided support.

The resolutions committee also adopted a resolution lauding Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton who is retiring from public office to return to his home in Escanaba. It follows:

"Whereas, Hon. Herbert J. Rushton, of Delta county, through his years of service as attorney general of Michigan, as director of the Michigan Sales Tax department and as a state senator, has brought credit to the Republican party in his state, his district and

MORE GAS FOR SERVICEMEN

Gallon Per Day Of Furlough Authorized
By OPA

A new policy on granting gasoline rations to members of the armed services on leave or furlough has been announced by Chester Bowles, administrator of the Office of Price Administration.

Effective July 25, 1944, a member of the armed services on leave or furlough for a period of three days or more will be entitled to one gallon of gasoline for each day of his leave or furlough up to a maximum of 30 gallons. The new rule replaces one granting a flat five gallons to every member of the armed services on leave, furlough or pass, regardless of the length of the leave.

It has become evident that the old policy, which resulted in giving much more gasoline to a member of the armed forces who got many short leaves than to one who received one long one, was unfair to the men serving out of the country and returning after a long absence. To eliminate this unfairness, the new rule tailoring the amount of the ration to the length of the leave or furlough was worked out by OPA in conjunction with representatives of the army and the navy.

Furlough rations will now range between a minimum of three gallons for a three-day leave or furlough to a maximum of 30 gallons for 30 days. At the suggestion of the army and navy, no ration will be granted for passes (to army personnel) or liberties (to navy personnel), or for leaves or furloughs of less than three days.

To receive his ration, the member of the armed services should apply to the war price and rationing board having jurisdiction over the automobile he expects to drive, and present proper leave or furlough papers. The ration will be issued in the form of coupons or gasoline purchase permits, or a combination of the two.

TIE TREATING RATES CHANGE

Minor Price Adjustment
Is Announced By
OPA Office

Several minor price changes together with corrections and changes of a technical nature in the regulation covering the pressure preservative treatment of forest products were announced by the Office of Price Administration.

Only a small portion of the business done by the wood preserving industry is affected by the price changes, OPA said.

The changes, effective July 24, 1944, include one that provides a 10 per cent addition for treated lumber and switch ties on sales of 5,000-10,000 board feet and 25 per cent on sales of less than 5,000 board feet. For treated cross ties, it allows an additional charge of 10 per cent on sales of 125-250 ties and a 25 per cent addition on sales of less than 125 ties.

These percentages are equal to or, in certain cases, less than the differentials historically established in the industry for small-quantity sales of these items, OPA said. The original regulation allowed a percentage mark-up for small-quantity sales of treated poles and other round material, but inadvertently omitted mark-ups for lumber, switch ties and cross ties.
